

Roma (Gypsies) near Uzhgorod

Roma (Gypsies) near Uzhgorod in 1938, including the group's chief (standing second from left).

Deportation of Serbs and Roma (Gypsies) to Kozare and Jasenovac

This photograph shows them being marched to Kozare and Jasenovac, both Croatian concentration camps. Yugoslavia, July 1942.

Romani (Gypsy) prisoners in Dachau

Romani (Gypsy) prisoners line up for roll call in the Dachau concentration camp. Germany, June 20, 1938.

Roma (Gypsies) photographed near Craiova, Romania

Two Roma (Gypsies) photographed near Craiova. Romania, probably early 1930s.

Roma (Gypsies) in front of their tents

Scene from a Romani (Gypsy) camp: Roma (Gypsies) in front of their tents. Romania, 1936–40.
(Bundesarchiv inventory number 146-2001-16-20A.)

Forced-labor camp for Roma

Forced-labor camp for Roma (Gypsies). Lety, Czechoslovakia, wartime.

Aftermath of pogrom in Iasi

Roma (Gypsies) remove bodies from the Iasi-Calarasi death train during its stop in Tirgu-Frumos. Two trains left Iasi on June 30, 1941, bearing survivors of the pogrom that took place in Iasi on June 28-29. Hundreds of Jews died on the transports aboard crowded, unventilated freight cars in the heat of summer. Romania, July 1, 1941.

Gypsy camp in the Lodz ghetto

"Gypsy camp" area in the Lodz ghetto. Roma (Gypsies) were confined in a segregated block of buildings. Poland, 1941–44.

Forced labor in the Ravensbrück camp

Romani (Gypsy) inmates stand at attention during an inspection of the weaving mill, site of forced labor in the Ravensbrück concentration camp. In this workshop prisoners wove reed mats used to reinforce roads in swampy regions of the eastern front. Germany, between 1941 and 1944.

Close-up of a Romani (Gypsy) couple sitting in an open area in the Belzec concentration camp

A Romani (Gypsy) child in Rivesaltes

The photo's original caption reads "Don't touch me!"

Civilians walk among the bodies that have been removed from the Iasi death train

Female survivors in the "Gypsy barracks" after liberation

The original caption reads: "A view of the interior of one of the huts."

Gypsies doing forced labour in the oilfields

Massacre of Gypsies in the Thuringen Forest, date nk.

Gypsy children at Rivesaltes Detention Camp

Gypsies at Bardejov, Slovakia. From here they were transferred to Trnava and then to Auschwitz

Gypsies assembled to be massacred in April 1941 alongside soldiers

Greece

Ukraine

Balkans

Polish/Russian Border

Macedonia

Russia

Serbia

France

Hungary

Netherlands